Opening Sentence from Scripture - Luke 10: 27

"Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind' ; and, 'Love your neighbour as yourself.'"

Collect (Before we read we pray)

Eternal God, giver of love and peace, you call your children to live together as one family. Give us grace to learn your ways and to do your will, that we may bring justice and peace to all people, in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen. Methodist Worship

Old Testament Reading - Deut 30: 9-14

Then the LORD your God will make you most prosperous in all the work of your hands and in the fruit of your womb, the young of your livestock and the crops of your land. The LORD will again delight in you and make you prosperous, just as he delighted in your fathers, if you obey the LORD your God and keep his commands and decrees that are written in this Book of the Law and turn to the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul. Now what I am commanding you today is not too difficult for you or beyond your reach. It is not up in heaven, so that you have to ask, "Who will ascend into heaven to get it and proclaim it to us so we may obey it?" Nor is it beyond the sea, so that you have to ask, "Who will cross the sea to get it and proclaim it to us so we may obey it?" No, the word is very near you; it is in your mouth and in your heart so you may obey it

(This is the word of the Lord -- All: Thanks be to God)

Epistle Reading –Col 1: 1-14

Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, To the holy and faithful brothers in Christ at Colosse: Grace and peace to you from God our Father. We always thank God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, when we pray for you, because we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love you have for all the saints-- the faith and love that spring from the hope that is stored up for you in heaven and that you have already heard about in the word of truth, the gospel that has come to you. All over the world this gospel is bearing fruit and growing, just as it has been doing among you since the day you heard it and understood God's grace in all its truth.

You learned it from Epaphras, our dear fellow servant, who is a faithful minister of Christ on our behalf, and who also told us of your love in the Spirit. For this reason, since the day we heard about you, we have not stopped praying for you and asking God to fill you with the knowledge of his will through all spiritual wisdom and understanding. And we pray this in order that you may live a life worthy of the Lord and may please him in every way: bearing fruit in every good work, growing in the knowledge of God, being strengthened with all power according to his glorious might so that you may have great endurance and patience, and joyfully giving thanks to the Father, who has qualified you to share in the inheritance of the saints in the kingdom of light. For he has rescued us from the dominion of darkness and brought us into the kingdom of the Son he loves, in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins

(Reader This is the Word of the Lord, All: Thanks be to God)

Gospel Reading - Luke 10: 25-37

On one occasion an expert in the law stood up to test Jesus. "Teacher," he asked, "what must I do to inherit eternal life?" "What is written in the Law?" he replied. "How do you read it?" He answered: "'Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind' ; and, 'Love your neighbour as yourself.'" "You have answered correctly," Jesus replied. "Do this and you will live." But he wanted to justify himself, so he asked Jesus, "And who is my neighbour?" In reply Jesus said: "A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, when he fell into the hands of robbers. They stripped him of his clothes, beat him and went away, leaving him half dead. A priest happened to be going down the same road, and when he saw the man, he passed by on the other side. So too, a Levite, when he came to the place and saw him, passed by on the other side. But a Samaritan, as he travelled, came where the man was; and when he saw him, he took pity on him. He went to him and bandaged his wounds, pouring on oil and wine. Then he put the man on his own donkey, took him to an inn and took care of him. The next day he took out two silver coins and gave them to the innkeeper. 'Look after him,' he said, 'and when I return, I will reimburse you for any extra expense you may have.' "Which of these three do you think was a neighbour to the man who fell into the hands of robbers?" The expert in the law replied, "The one who had mercy on him." Jesus told him, "Go and do likewise." (Reader –This is the Word of the Lord, All: Thanks be to God)

Post Communion Prayer

Grant, O Lord, we beseech you, that the course of this world may be so peaceably ordered by your governance, that your Church may joyfully serve you in all godly quietness; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen

Commentary 'The Good Samaritan'

We are told today that an expert in the law comes to speak to Jesus and poses a question, 'what must I do to inherit eternal life.' It is not usual for a lawyer to cut so quickly to the crux of the matter, but credit where credit is due. This is perhaps the most important question which anyone ever asked of Jesus. The lawyer has put his finger on the single most important source of human angst and hence the answer of Jesus becomes perhaps the most famous of all parables of Jesus.

This is a wonderful passage for anyone who wonders whether they are acceptable to God. The answer which Jesus gives involves him teasing the man with the phrase,

'Love the Lord your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your strength and with all your mind and love your neighbour as yourself'.

But we cannot escape the fact that when asked how we inherit eternal life, Jesus devotes the vast majority of his answer to a story about a Samaritan and how he reacted when faced with a difficult decision. Jesus is asked about eternal life and he answers in a story about human lifestyle. You might have expected Jesus to devote himself to teaching about spectacular spiritual qualities. You could be forgiven for expecting Jesus to go on at length about religious devotion, but he doesn't. He talks about human pity, nursing care, sacrificial giving of your own transport and shelling out cash for someone other than yourself. It is these ordinary human qualities of love and care which are given status by Jesus.

Professional religious people will sometimes try to convince us that certain spiritual activities are what God is really concerned about. Subsequently many people live their lives with spiritual guilt because they think they are missing the spiritual target. If we are not careful, coming to church can be disappointing a little like going to Weightwatchers each week and finding that you haven't lost enough weight.

However if you want to know how to please God, do not be concerned about distractions, look at the Samaritan. These are the qualities which God looks for. How we treat not just one another, but all others, this is the acid test of our love for God, and it is this lifestyle which counts before God.

Love for God has so often been associated with particular expressions of behaviour. If we think of love for God and we are honest, then we are often tempted to think of particular spiritual behaviour. A common word used these days is 'spirituality', all kinds of books are being written, courses and retreats organised about spirituality. It is in a sense a bit of a mysterious word, and for the uninitiated it is perhaps perceived as something reserved for those who are on a higher spiritual level capable of receiving better signals from the divine stratosphere. Whenever you hear the word 'spirituality' remember that Jesus tells us that when it comes to the crunch, the bottom line is this, what matters is what we would do if we went down from Jerusalem to Jericho.

Spirituality is not about religious exercises, it is about how we live our Christian life and if it isn't about that then it is just self-indulgent rubbish. The techniques and spiritual hoops which we may like to try and jump through are largely of human making. Different spiritualities have stressed prayers, rosaries, meditation, Bible study, sacraments, retreats, pilgrimages, alpha courses, the list is endless. These are just some things which some people have found helpful, to other people they may be an anathema. There are obviously good spiritualities and bad spirituality, but what defines them as such is how well they equip us to be obedient to Christ. We do not have to be the same, the way that you and I relate to God may be very different, the proof of the spiritual pudding is however in how we are changed to follows our Master.

So how can we become the kind of people who will inherit eternal life? How can we change what is dreadful within us and become more like the example of Christ? We must realise that (for want of a better word) our religious activity is not about a journey of self-discovery, it is not about self-satisfaction. We seek after the will of God and we sit at Jesus feet like Mary in order that we may go out and serve him like Martha. It is my firm conviction that if we sit honestly at Jesus feet we instinctively want to go out into his world to serve him. Spirituality is not self-seeking, or self-serving, it is about becoming the kind of people who are committed in their faith, who are prepared to go out and be the good Samaritan.

The parable is a fine example of what prayer is all about. The Good Samaritan could have passed by on the other side of the road like the others and then prayed for the man in need? Quite possibly the priest remembered the man in his prayers that night. Quite possibly the Levite remembered him in his prayers that night also. Those prayers were totally unacceptable, Jesus used those people as examples of people who missed the mark. The 20th century theologian Karl Barth once wrote that "to clasp the hands in prayer is the beginning of an uprising against the disorder of the world."

Put simply prayer is a beginning, but prayer isn't magic. If we pray for the people who fall among thieves and then walk by on the other side that uprising will never happen through our prayers. It was this action of the Samaritan which was considered worthy by Jesus. Often people feel intensely guilty about their spiritual devotion and imagine that they should be doing something which they are not. Jesus said, 'if you love me you will keep my commandments,' Prayer is not just about saying words but it is about an attitude of life and of the heart. About being prepared to disturb the complacency of our lives and put ourselves at risk. This is real spirituality, real Christianity and it puts us in God's good books. Charles Royden

Meditation

For Christians the man who fell among robbers is Christ himself. Jesus taught us that whatsoever we do to the least of these, we do to Jesus himself. So it is that Christians are called to see the face of Jesus in the poor, the needy, the outcast, and the lowly. having compassion.

The love of God is always connected to the love of neighbour. One Desert Father taught his disciples to draw a circle with a compass. God is the centre point, he said, and we are all of us at the circumference making our journey to God. As our line draws closer to God, our line also gets closer to the lines of others. The closer we get to God, the closer we get to one another; and the closer we get to one another, the closer we get to God.

Today we are asked whether there are limits to our compassion. It is easy to speak of our love for humankind and ask God to enhance this love in our lives. It is much harder to love the person who always parks their car outside our house or who has children who make a noise and play in the street. Our neighbours are not those we like, they are those we find difficult, or like the Samaritan those we are told we should hate. As Christians we do not get to choose, whenever somebody is in need, we are to treat them as we would treat Christ himself, nobody should ever get passed by.

The five candidates standing for the leadership of the Labour Party discussed the influence of Christianity on their political beliefs at a hustings held by the Christian Socialist Movement in Westminster on Monday. David Miliband, “You can’t do much better than the Sermon on the Mount” for political inspiration. He said that the Christian idea of “righteousness” was important because it taught that “society is about right relationships”. While admitting that he was not himself religious, he affirmed the “dramatic links between Christianity and social democracy in Britain”.

Ed Miliband, the Shadow Energy and Climate Change Secretary, who is the younger brother of David Miliband, said that their parents, who were Jewish refugees from Nazi Germany, taught them a simple, though not religious, faith. This meant that “if you saw injustice, you did something about it.” Mr Miliband also called on the Labour Party to draw on its Christian Socialist tradition, and reclaim words such as “love, compassion, and caring”.

Andy Burnham, the Shadow Health Secretary, said that his Roman Catholic faith taught him “the innate and immutable quality of every human life”. “The basic tenets of the Labour Party are one and the same as the Christian Church: compassion, decency, kindness.” Mr Burnham, however, criticised the “black-and-white” approach that the RC Church took to “complex moral issues”. He said that he “found the way the Church lobbied Parliament very difficult indeed”.

Ed Balls, the Shadow Education Secretary, whose father was a Sunday-school teacher, said: “I learnt my politics from within the Church of England. It was a very ethical socialism based upon biblical stories.” He also said he didn’t understand “the idea that you have to leave your faith outside” when providing voluntary services or campaigning for social justice.

Diane Abbott, who was the first black woman to be elected to Parliament, said that more people in her constituency in Hackney attended a faith meeting on a Sunday than any type of political meeting; “so I take issues of church and faith very seriously.” “The lesson for the Labour Party from Christian Socialist history is that we are all human beings,” she said. “We have to stay close to people, and listen and respect people. Politics can’t be about just the next opinion poll, but practice based on values.”

Andy Flanagan, the director of the Christian Socialist Movement, commented: “The audience contained people who are involved in their local church communities — just the people the leadership candidates say they want Labour to reach to. The candidates had to move out of their comfort zones, and talk more about the core values which motivate them.”

Prayers for Sunday and the week ahead

Eternal God, giver of love and peace, you call your children to live together as one family. Give us grace to learn your ways and to do your will, that we may bring justice and peace to all people, in the name of Jesus Christ. Amen.

Ever-faithful God, whose being is perfect righteousness: reconcile us in your Son with the helpless and the needy, with those we would ignore or oppress, and with those we have called enemies, that we may serve all people as your hands of love, and sit at the feet of those who need our compassionate care. Amen.

Race For Life in Bedford I am taking part in this On Sunday 25th July I am taking part in Race For Life in aid of Cancer Research U.K. In view of so many charities, churches and other good causes crying out for our money, and the present financial difficulties for so many, I am looking for folk willing to sponsor me just £1. Those donating £1 will receive a copy of my son's childhood poems. My son is a survivor of testicular cancer, hence my reason for supporting this charity. I will be in the foyer with my sponsorship form and copies of my son's poems after the morning service in St. Mark's church today and next Sunday 18th July. Many thanks, Marian Matthews

Flowers from St Mark's For many years Putnoe Heights Church has distributed flowers to friends of the church. The flowers are removed from the displays around the church. These might be delivered on a special occasion, when somebody is poorly or bereaved. St Mark's would now like to implement the same activity and from this Sunday flowers will be removed from displays etc to be taken out into the community. The Leadership Team will be responsible for this and would appreciate being told of anybody who would value this thoughtful gesture.

Storybox at St. Mark's The last session before the holidays is July 15 and it starts again on 9 September. A big thank you to all the volunteers who have helped us over the past year. Jaana.

Rest In Peace

On the Sunday following a funeral service we remember in church those who have died. We light a candle to symbolise the light of Christ which eternally shines and brings hope. If you would like a person remembered in our service when the candle is lit, perhaps on an anniversary or birthday, please inform the ministers, or telephone the church office.
